MUM'S THE WORD: City Fertility Centre's new clinic has just opened in Chermshire.

Clinic puts family first

WOMEN struggling to start a family now have access to a leading expert following the opening of the City Fertility Centre's clinic in Chermshire during March.
Dr Ashish Das, co-founder and medical director of the centre, said demand for the service had prompted the northside business opening.
"We have industry-leading pregnancy success rates," he said.
Dr Das said one of the most important things couples wanting to start a family needed to do was make sure their lifestyle was healthy with good eating and exercise habits. He said patients learnt the positive impact of losing weight, giving up smoking and reducing drug, alcohol and caffeine intake.

"For example, smoking reduces IVF success rates by half and even losing a small amount of weight can significantly increase your chances of pregnancy," he said.
"In fact, 12 per cent of primary infertility is linked to women being underweight or overweight."
